COUNCIL FILLS THE VACANCY LAST NIGHT

W. C. Clark, Prominent And Pioneer Merchant, Formally Inducted Into the Seat Made Vacant By Resignation of J. Bryant Tussing

FOLK TO BE DISAPPOINTED

Water Company Says It Cannot Run Its Lines Out Lincoln Avenue Extension For the Reason That Revenue Would Be Insufficient to Justify Cost

W. C. Clark, one of the most prominent, as well as a pioneer business man of Charleroi, was selected by the borough council last night to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. Bryant Tussing in order that he might accept the burgess portfolio. Mr. Clark was duly inducted into office, took his seat, and cast his vote in the deliberations of the body, his election being made unanimous.

A petition presented by Frank C. Riva, and signed by numerous citizens and property holders for the improvement of Third avenue from Woodlawn avenue to the borough line, was referred to the street committee and the borough engineer.

There were the usual galaxy of citizens present with complaints. Among the number was a resident of Shady avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets, who desires the street repaired so that he can make ingress and egress therefrom with his automobile. The matter was referred to the street committee, with power to act

A matter of 60-feet parking space was granted the Charleroi Taxi Cab company in McKean avenue.

Burgess J. Bryant Tussing reported that the income from his office in the way of fines for the month of May was $416—one of the largest months in the history of this office.

Council considered the budget, and the recommendations and report of the finance committee, was accepted. The millage was set at 22 mills.

Councilman Thomas P. Tweed said that it was impossible to get the Water company to extend its lines out Lincoln avenue extension to furnish water to residents, as per their application at a recent session of the body; that the reason ascribed is that the revenue derived would not be sufficient for the expense entailed. There are too few people to warrant extension of its lines to accommodate the few, according to the company. The company's contention was sustained inso far as the Public Service Commission is concerned, according to the borough solicitor, if it could show that the revenue derived would not warrant the extension of its lines.

An ordinance regulating the heights of awnings, passed third and final reading. They must be six and one-half feet in height.

It was reported that the material for the improvement of Lincoln Avenue extension had been ordered; but it was also said that old standard brick must be used, and the street commissioner was empowered to purchase them.

Council formally accepted an invitation to attend Veterans' Guard services, to be held in the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The invitation to the body was extended by Comrade Jacob Wise.

A warrant was ordered drawn in the sum of $175 to pay for the new motorcycle—a $225 machine, which was purchased for $175 through the offices of Burgess J. Bryant Tussing. This machine, according to the bur-

The majority of patrons of the Palace will remember Miss Humphreys filled an eight weeks' engagement during 1922, and was one of the biggest hits that ever played Charleroi, all members of the company proving most capable, and soon became favorites with the pleasure seeking public. Joe Posa, 21 Years Old, Said to Have Been Implicated In Holding Betty Stoppa, Prisoner, Is In the Toils of the Law

ALSO MAY BE A MURDERER

Posa Is Being Held In the Monongahela Jail Pending An Investigation By Chief of Police S. S. Burnworth, On Two Charges

Joe Posa, aged 21 years, wanted by the police of Monongahela for the abduction of Betty Stoppa, aged 15 years, of Jenners, Pa., last summer when she was taken to Monongahela and held a captive for two weeks by Posa and Sylvestria Paulo; and is also wanted in connection with the murder of Pasquale Serrano on March 20, 1923, at Monessen, was arrested at a home in Park avenue, Monongahela, by Lieutenant G. T. Gillingham and Patrolman Charles Young yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Posa is being held at the Monongahela jail pending an investigation by Chief of Police S. S. Burnsworth on two charges.

For over a year the Monongahela police have searched for Posa, who left Monongahela where he had been boarding with Mrs. Marie Aello, 543 Park avenue, early in 1923, following the escape of Betty Stoppa from the men whom she accused of being her abductors and assailants. Both Paulo and Posa escaped when a search was instituted for them by police. However, on October 14, 1923, Sylvestri Pulo was arrested at a Monongahela boarding house by Chief Burnsworth and taken to Washington to be held on charges preferred by parents of the child.

Posa, prior to the abduction of the Stoppa girl, lived at 151 Ontario street Monessen, where he was employed in the mills at that place. He came under the surveillance of the police of Monessen on March 20, 1923, when Pasquale Serrana was brutally murdered by three Italians on a street near the Monessen brewery. Posa and Serrano at the time were bitter enemies.

The Monessen police following an investigation when it was found that Posa was concerned with the murder arrested him and another man, but after being held for several days both were released. Posa immed-

WILL MAKE THE STATE "BONE-DRY

Harrisburg, June 4.—A state-wide campaign to close every place in Pennsylvania where violation of the prohibition law is found, was announced today at department of justice headquarters here.

The campaign which resulted in closing 10 places in Allegheny county by injunction is to be carried to every section of the state under plans worked out by Major William S. Wright, the governor's enforcement officer.

Wright will operate in cooperation with every existing agency including county and city officials, state police, and the federal authorities.

"The most effective weapon against violators of the prohibition laws is the injunction," said Wright.

A number of raids will likewise be made where the places to be closed are notorious, he said.

The activities of the state agents at present are confined to western Pennsylvania, but other sections will [illegible] the course of a few weeks.

Another drive was expected to be made in the anthracite region where notices have been served to close. The next step is the injunction.

Wright pointed out that local authorities have the power to proceed as the state is doing through the city and county and solicitors under the Pinchot law.

In most cases, however, where cooperation with the municipalities and counties has been obtained, he said the state agents have procured the evidence.

Charleroi Team Is To Play Three Games, Three Days

The Charleroi Baseball team is to play three games in three days. On Friday afternoon of this week, the club is to meet on the Charleroi grounds, the crack West Newton team the contest being scheduled for 5 o'clock, slow, or eastern standard time. Owing to the fact that intense rivalry, while friendly, exists between the nine of West Newton and Charleroi, the game on Friday night here promises to be not only largely attended by West Newton, Charleroi, and the fans of this section of the valley, it will doubtless too, be one of the most closely played and interesting of any of the contests staged on the local grounds this season.

On Saturday and Sunday, the Charleroi club, headed by Manager D. Cleve Mathers will hie to the classic precincts of Morgantown, West Virginia, where they will meet the best team of that city in Saturday and Sunday contests. It is said that a number of the local fans and boosters for the Charleroi team, will accompany the manager and aggregation.

CORSAIRS ALL SET FOR EARLY SERIES ON EASTERN SOIL

The Buccaneers today, will begin their first eastern invasion of the year when they cross the big bridge and open a four-game stand in Brooklyn. Just what they will be able to do with the Dodgers, remains to be seen, but the fans of Western Pennsylvania, are quite hopeful that McKechnie's fellows will make the best showing they have made so far this spring, during their whirl around the four cities of the Atlantic coast. This belief is inspired by recent indications that the horrible slump which has been pursuing the Pirates since the race started, is beginning to lift.

The pitching staff instead of getting off with a sweeping jump, could not make the riffle, but this wasn't the worst thing about it. The batters who usually smear the pill all around the lot, were unable to shake base blows out of their bludgeons with any degree of consistency. They usually stacked up against opposing pitchers who happened to be exactly right and these were little breaks that went decidedly the wrong way for the Buccos.

Such popularity must be deserved

OLD records to break, new ones to make! Grilling tests of speed, stamina, power! And for the winner—popularity, hard-won and deserved.

So with everything else. To win popularity even a cigarette must deserve it. Chesterfield, for example, has long been winning an average of over 1000 smokers a day.

One thing alone—Chesterfield's better taste — can account for such popularity.

This Writer Objects to Sweet Mannered Persons

To ordinary human beings few persons are so annoying as those with a consistently sweet manner, says a writer in the London Times. The invariably cheerful are trying in their hearty way; they are easier to bear with equanimity than the invariably sweet.

A robust cheerfulness may easily be put down to insensibility. When our own more delicate nerves and senses are suffering, we may wring consolation and a heartening pride out of comparing ourselves with those who suffer so little that they can keep up their spirits. But about a sweet manner there is always a hint of accusation. It lays claim both to suffering more acute than our own and to superiority to suffering. So far from admitting that pituita is molesta—that a cold in the head is a nuisance—it takes toothache but as a call for more sweetness. Wet through, chilled to the bone, even undisguisably red-nosed, it is still sweet. The fixity of it becomes maddening. The grave, sweet eye, the sweet smile on the mouth, the slight tilt of the head to one side, the measured and sugared voice, the unalterably sweet and hopeful sentiments, all seem to accuse our more natural selves of being creatures of a lower grade.

We long to bring the sweet one down to our own level, to irritate them somehow into an exhibition of common [illegible]

And, failing, we take refuge behind the charge that there can be nothing direct and honest left behind the confirmed manner. Sincerity must obviously have long deserted the character that can thus hide itself behind a mask. The sweetness, we vow, is all a pretense, a pretty covering for unthinkable depths of guilt and selfishness and hatred. Only fools, of which there are plenty, could be taken in by it.

Declares Matinee Idol Is Memory of the Past

"Yes," said the old actor reminiscently, "the matinee idol is a thing of the past. He is only a memory. The moving picture hero of the screen has supplanted him. The girls and women have put the film star on a pedestal, and they give him that adoration no matter whether he is in California, or Algiers, while viewing the picture.

"A score of years ago the matinee idol was in the zenith of his glory. People of the present day cannot realize how the women used to idolize them. There was Harry Montague, George Rignold of 'King Henry V' fame; Osmond Tearle, who starred in 'The Silver King'; Charley Thorne, the leading man of the old Union Square theater; Harry Crisp, handsome Jack Barnes, who was Adelaide Neilson's leading man; Henry Conway, and later Maurice Barrymore and Kyrle Bellew. These men were the pets of the ladies and each one could fill the house on a Saturday matinee. Not only this, but they were feted and entertained by the men as well.

"The most famous was Montague. The girls throughout the country bought his pictures and used to wear their hair in what was known as the Montague curl. Who that knows those days can forget when Monty, as he was known, used to take a jaunt down to Long Branch, then the fashionable resort? He was tall, slender, broad shouldered, with a slight, silky mustache, big, dreamy eyes, with handsome white teeth. Without being the least effeminate he used to wear a double-breasted blue serge suit, white flannel yachting cap, with a heavy gold cord, and was one of the first to introduce the low russet shoe, as they were called in those days."—New York Sun and Globe.

Pure Water Does Not Conduct Electricity

Pure water does not conduct electricity to any appreciable extent. A column of chemically pure water one twenty-fifth of an inch long has as much resistance to the passage of an electric current as a copper wire of the same diameter as long as from the earth to the moon. What makes ordinary water a moderately good conductor is not the water itself, but the material dissolved in it. When, for example, a molecule of salt is put into water, it breaks up into what are known as ions, one positively, the other negatively charged. If then an electric current is given a chance to pass through the water, it rides on the ions which carry the electrical charges through it. If there are no ions, that is, if there are no salts in solution, the current cannot get across. But all water outside of chemical laboratories contains enough dissolved substances to make a fairly good conductor, although chemically pure water is not.

Origin of 12-Hour Dial

Long before the invention of the modern clock the Greeks divided the 24-hour day into two uneven units, from sunrise to sunset and from sunset to sunrise. And these units they further divided into hours, each hour being a twelfth of its unit.

Thus in summer a day hour was longer than a night hour, and in winter vice versa. Then the hours were further subdivided into minutes and seconds. But the Egyptians had the much more practical arrangement of dividing the whole period from sunrise to sunrise into 24 equal hours.

Eventually a system embodying the two methods became general. The Greek 12-hour periods, with their minutes and seconds were kept, but every hour was made equal in length. Thus when the modern clock came to be made its face was divided into 12 hours.—Detroit News.

The Sun Spot Cycle

Important new knowledge about sun spots was acquired during the year through observations at the Mr. Wilson observatory, although 1923 was the year of minimum sunspottedness. These great vortices are centers of magnetic fields, and they are known to pass across the disk of the sun two by two, with each spot of a pair having a different sign, as though they were the two ends of the horseshoe magnet. When spots of the new cycle appeared on the disk of the sun it was discovered that the arrangement of polarity was exactly the reverse of what it had been. Thus the true sun spot cycle is just twice the eleven and one-eighth years assumed now, and contains two maxima and minima instead of only one of each.—Current History Magazine.

Who's Who?

The door of the post office opened, and a man whom the postmistress did not recognize as one of the people living in the district walked in. "I am expecting a registered letter to be left here for me," he announced, as he approached the counter.

"What name, please?" asked the postmistress.

The man gave his name and the letter was produced, but the woman had her doubts as to whether she ought to give it up, as she had no means of identifying the caller.

Upon hearing this the stranger took a photograph from his pocket and handed it to the postmistress, remarking:

"I think that ought to satisfy you as to who I am."

She looked long and earnestly at the portrait and then said:

"Yes, that's you, right enough. Here's your letter."

More Exercise Needed by Boys Living on Farms

Let the farm child play! Plenty of exercise in the open air should produce good health. But, unfortunately, the exercise the farm child gets is often one-sided. His major muscles get too much use, the auxiliary ones too little. His body does not develop symmetrically.

Observations made during the World war proved that the farm-reared young man reached the stage of fatigue sooner than his city-reared comrade. The farm boy was outdistanced in games calling for mental alertness by the city man. A slow mind had resulted from his being cheated of play.

Pulling weeds and hoeing, driving a team hitched to a wagon or cultivator may not be injurious if supplemented by other vigorous exercise, but such work without corrective activities tends to make the country boy round shouldered and flat chested. He is apt to have a forward-starting head.

Lungs and heart and digestion do not get a fair chance. Health examinations of more than a million school children in New York state show that while 72 per cent of the pupils in the city schools have physical defects, the number in the rural schools is 87 per cent.

As farms grow farther apart and the numbers of children in families decrease, school becomes the only place where the child can play. So to cheat the time of his school time becomes a crime against his body as well as his mind.

The boy who plays ball hard at school learns the meaning of enthusiasm. He finds out what it is to abandon himself to an enterprise. No matter how slight his physique, this boy will make the hard-working, optimistic man of tomorrow. He will definitely outstrip in a brief time the large-boned boy of fifteen who is being kept at home to do the plowing.—Hygeia.

Odd Instrument Is Used as Roof Pitch Finder

A folding instrument which measures the angle from the horizontal and the inches of pitch to the horizontal foot is now in use. The device, when open, consists of radial arms and an arc, the whole frame resembling a cut of pie. Pivoted at the center, or "point of the pie," is a pointer arm bearing a spirit level. When the user of the instrument desires to ascertain the pitch of a roof or any sloping surface he rests one edge of the "pie" on the surface, moves the pointer up until he centers the spirit level bubbles, and under the pointer on the circular edge will be the figures giving the pitch in degrees and the number of inches measured along the surface that would be set off by perpendiculars rising from either extremity of a line a foot long set beneath the surface. When not in use, the instrument is folded up into compact form in such a way that the spirit level is surrounded by the different metal parts and thus completely protected.

Inventor of Locomotive

It is not true that George Stephenson invented the locomotive steam engine. That honor belongs to George Trevithick, a Cornish engineer, whose steam locomotive drew a train on rails from Merthyr Tydvil to what is now called Abercynon, in Glamorganshire, in February, 1804. The Merthyr achievement was the result of a bet. A local ironmaster, William Crashay, having heard of Trevithick's experiments in Cornwall, made a bet that he would get a steam engine to draw a load of 10 tons on the tramway from Merthyr to Abercynon. He was laughed at, but he sent for Trevithick, who duly fulfilled the conditions of the bet.

The engine had a brick smokestack. It had to pass through a tunnel, the roof of which knocked off the stack. Trevithick had to halt the train and rebuild his stack. Trevithick had previously—on Christmas eve, 1801—driven a locomotive by road with a load of passengers. He repeated the performance in London in 1803, when a steam vehicle made by him was run in the streets from Leather lane along Oxford street to Paddington, the return journey being made by Islington.—London Answers.

Betrothed as Babies

For centuries past it has been the custom in China for the parents of a baby girl to betroth her, in infancy, to the youthful son of a friendly couple, and there have been numerous cases in which the girl has not seen her husband-to-be until she arrived at the home of his parents for the marriage ceremony. The match was a question solely for the respective parents and the young couple were not consulted. Western civilization, however, is encroaching on China, and the fact that the old order is changing is proved by four advertisements inserted in the vernacular Press of Peking recently, by which young women have given notice to the world that they decline to recognize the betrothals arranged for them in their infancies, and that they reserve for themselves the right to select their life partners.

KEEPS HIS PROMISE.

President Coolidge, by signing the tax measure, has kept his promise to reduce taxes, more especially those paid by the men and women who earn but little. His action means that Congress has granted the President's demand that a flat reduction of 25 per cent be given for 1923 — this is a decided victory for the people and for Calvin Coolidge—it means that the interests of the man or woman, no matter whether on the farm or in the city, have been safeguarded by the President—it means that the [illegible] to the citizens of the land—it means that Congress has at last realized that the people stand solidly behind the President in his fight for a reduction of taxes. It is true that the measure just passed is not exactly what the President desired. He wanted a bill that would mean a even greater reduction of taxes. There is no doubt that at the next session of Congress the President will insist that the tax bill be revised so as to give even further relief, and by that time the obstructionists in Congress will, no doubt, have been informed in emphatic terms by their constituents to do as the President desires.

When June 7 was tentatively agreed upon as the date of adjournment, the President summoned numerous leaders to the White House and flatly told them that farm legislation of remedial character was necessary before the members of the two bodies departed for their homes. If Congress has any sagacity, political or otherwise, it will pass a real farm relief bill before it adjourns.

The McNary-Haugen bill has not met with the approval of the heads of the many farm organizations, many of them claiming that while it might give some slight temporary relief, it was economically unsound and impractical in application. The people and the President can see no reason why a bill to aid agriculture should not be enacted into law, and at once.

ALL SHOULD CLOSE.

A small percentage of the business men of the borough refuse to close their places on the holiday next week, when practically the entire community will take advantage of the unexcelled opportunity to spend the day at Kennywood park.

To say the least, this is unpatriotic, and unworthy of those who make such refusal. If their refusal comes through a desire to make a little extra money in that their competitor will be away from his place of business, it follows that he thinks more of the coin of the realm that he does of patriotism and the manifestation of the spirit of fairness toward his competitor, aside from his presumed fealty to the borough, a duty he owes his clerks, his family, and even to his customers.

As a matter of fact in this day and age there is not enough of recreation, too little of divertisement, for the people as a whole; it is all work and no play, and an occasion liken unto that of next Wednesday, should be hailed with joy by all the people, the young, the middle-aged and even the old. This chance to commingle together, to fraternize, and cement friendships existing through the medium of a day's outing, should be taken advantage of by every person physically able to go, and to those who are not in good health if they are able to stand the trip, it would be a panacea for their ills—this occasion to commingle with nature.

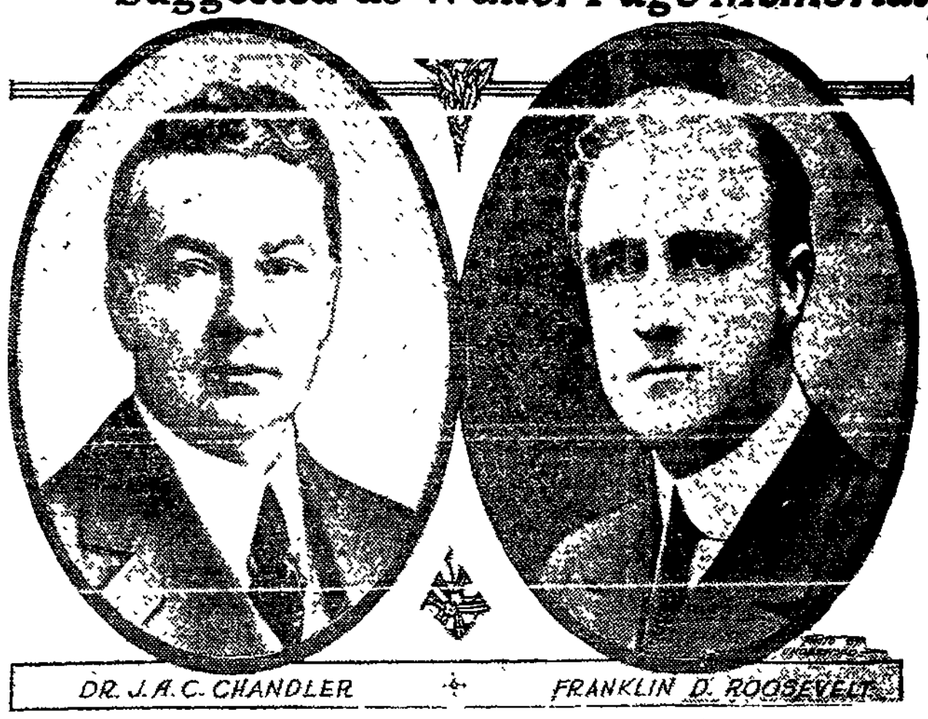
Eminent Thinkers Support School To Study International Relations; Suggested as Walter Page Memorial



DR. J. A. C. CHANDLER — FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

With one of the most eminently qualified groups of leading thinkers in the nation behind it, the proposed graduate school of international relations—the first of its kind to be established in this country—is now well on the road to realization.

Characterized at a recent conference in New York as "infinitely more than a school of diplomacy, the proposed school has been designed to promote greater understanding and knowledge of all the branches of international life in the midst of a world relationship where scientific and economic facts are bringing nations to many forms of interdependency."

As an outgrowth of this conference, which was presided over by Franklin D. Roosevelt the following resolutions, introduced by Dr J. A. C. Chandler, President of William and Mary College, were unanimously adopted:

1—Recognizing in the growing influence of the United States in world affairs, and the inevitable interdependence of nations, the need of a school of highest standards and equipment for the conduct of research and training in the field of international relations, we cordially endorse in principal the establishment of a school of international relations.

2—We understand a proposal has been advanced that such a school be connected with Johns Hopkins University and also that the further proposal has been advanced that because of his eminent practical service in promotion of sound international relations at a critical period in our history the name of Walter Hines Page be associated with the school.

3—The Chairman is hereby authorized to appoint a committee to confer with the President of Johns Hopkins University and friends of the late Walter Hines Page and others in order to further these proposals and bring them if possible, into full realization.

Pending approval by the authorities of Johns Hopkins University the scope of the school is planned to include the basic subjects of fundamental bases of international relations, history of international relations international law, diplomatic practice and procedure and international organizations.

It has been suggested that the course embrace a three-year period of graduate instruction at least one year of which would be spent abroad with study of racial and ethnic and psychologic, political and social undercurrents, and other pertinent factors that have direct bearing on the relations of nations with each other.

Behind the project are scores of prominent educators, publicists, jurists, business men and men who have held high public office, including Colonel Edward M. House, Edward Bok, Newton D. Baker, Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, President of the University of Virginia; Dr. John H. Finley, of the New York Times, Governor A. C. Ritchie, of Maryland; Ray Stannard Baker; Dr. Kenneth C. M. Sills, president of Bowdoin College; William Allen White, Kansas publisher; Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, president of Brown University; Herbert S Houston, editor of Our World; French Strother, of World's Work; former Ambassador John W Davis, George W. Wickersham, Julius H. Barnes, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, Dr. Archibald Coolidge of Harvard, and a score of other equally prominent men and women.

Headquarters of the committee appointed to bring the project before the next conference in concrete form have been established in the offices of Herbert L. Gutterson, 111 Broadway, New York.

U. S. Measures Snow to Aid Irrigation Projects

Extensive "snow surveys" are sometimes made by the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture in regions where the water required for irrigation is obtained almost entirely from melting snow. The mountain slopes constitute natural reservoirs, from which the moisture that falls in winter as snow is gradually led through spring and summer to the surrounding country. In order to ascertain the total amount of water available, the snow surveyor travels over the watershed, often on skis or snowshoes, cutting sections of snow with a cylindrical "snow sampler" and weighing them with a small spring balance. The weather bureau also maintains in the Western mountains a number of special stations at which daily measurements of snowfall are made for the benefit of irrigation projects.

The heaviest snowfall in the United States occurs in the high Sierra Nevada of California and in the Cascade range of Washington and Oregon. At places in both of these regions more than sixty-five feet of snow has fallen in a single winter. The snow sometimes lies twenty-five feet deep on the ground, burying one-story houses to the eaves.

National Bank Advantages

The advantages of transacting financial affairs with a bank such as The First National Bank, organized under the laws of the United States Government, are many.

Chief among these is the assurance of the highest degree of safety by reason of the rigid restrictions which the law places upon the manner in which loans shall be made, surplus set aside from earnings for the protection of funds and in general the close inspection and supervision which the Government makes of the bank's affairs.

Mississippi Flows Uphill?

The basis for the statement that the Mississippi river flows "uphill" is the idea that "up" is away from the center of the earth and "down" is toward it. If these were the only meanings of the words, then it might be said that the Mississippi river flows uphill, for the polar radius of the earth is over thirteen miles shorter than the equatorial radius and as the Mississippi river extends over 18 degrees of latitude, its proper proportion of this difference amounts to more than four miles, the river's source being that much nearer the center of the earth than its mouth.

When Live Wires Don't Kill

The biological survey says that small birds are seldom killed by alighting on a trolley wire, even though it carries a heavy current of electricity. This is because there is not a complete circuit. If a larger bird were to alight on a wire, and one of his wings touch another wire, it would be apt to cause death. Eagles have often been killed in this way.

iately left Monessen and went to Monongahela and it was then that he abducted the Stoppa girl, it is said.

It was learned yesterday that he went to East Pittsburgh, where he secured employment at the Westinghouse Manufacturing company. Since that time he has resided at Swissvale. Monessen police continued to investigate the Serrano murder and additional evidence, which incriminated Posa, it is said, was found and they also began a search for the much wanted man without results. Posa went to Monongahela and was visiting a friend at his home in Park avenue when Mrs. Canchita Tranzo, of 564 Park avenue, a sister of Pasquale Serrano, the murdered man, saw Posa and immediately notified the police that the fugitive was in Monongagela and his arrest followed immediately.
